

Stuff Has Not Made Us Free

By Louie Heseemann

I think most of us clutterers (or former clutterers) would agree, too much stuff has not made us free.
It did not bring us the satisfaction we intended it to be.

But, so what? We live in a land of freedom where we are free to make mistakes
And then we are free to correct them and try again (whatever it takes)!

We know now that buying each item gave us a thrill like cocaine! But in the long run, getting rid of our accumulated stuff causes us lots of pain.

So what are we to do? Get our thrill from going to the beach or somewhere else like going dancing or getting a massage or visiting a zoo?

But if we see something out there we are really wanting to buy...
Hey, life is a "learning experience" ... nobody can say you can't give it a try.

But you're also free to kiss that bargain goodbye!