

Third Brain

By Louie Hesemann

10/01/15

Since I found out about the newfangled "third brain" I've got,
I've been using mine quite a lot.

It's called a "frontal cerebral cortex" and when I heard
I had one, I was amused.

As far as I know, mine has never been used.

Our guest speaker said, "mankind's logic, visualization and problem solving ability can just explode.

Here, all this time I've been stuck in my
"reptilian" and "mammalian" brain mode...

...which means you have "road rage"

(like a reptile and like an animal) you never get enough.

And you're a clutterer and hard to live with 'cause you're always so gruff.

Since I've been using my new "cerebral cortex brain",

I'm walking taller. My problems are smaller.

Logic and visualizations make me smarter and stronger...

...not reacting to peoples' bad driving any longer.

Other peoples' opinions about me don't make me sore.

Rude people don't get my goat anymore.

Farewell to using my reptilian and mammalian brain,

I will never stoop down to your level again.

I will be kinder, tidier and more polite, it's true - because they are all "logical" things to do.